Dielectric Nipple

A dielectric water way preventing galvanic corrosion that normally occurs between dissimilar metals in the presence of water.

The Model DN nipple:

- Allows six times less current than an insulated dielectric union
- Eliminates stray current corrosion
- Is lab tested and field proven

Extended Handle

Extended Valve Handle protrudes through the pipe insulation for easy access, yet prevents condensation on the outer surface. It provides easy operation with up to 2" of pipe insulation. This reinforced Lexan® fire-rated tee handle:

- Has a stationary vapor sleeve that prevents water vapor from entering down into the pipe insulation. The insulation is glued to the sleeve.
- Shows the valve operating position at a glance.
- Has a removable cap that provides access to an adjustable memory stop.
- Provides access to the packing nut without removing the insulation
- Has a tag with model, GPM, etc. always visible above the insulation.
